What is Systems Thinking?

In today's complex and interconnected world, challenges rarely exist in isolation. Systems Thinking provides a powerful framework for understanding these complexities by examining how different components interact and influence one another. This approach allows decision-makers to identify leverage points, enabling effective strategies for complex organizational and project challenges.

This workshop will explore the Impactation® Method, a state-of-the-art tool for collaborative and adaptive decision-making, and include:

- Theory: An introduction to Systems Thinking and mental model creation.
- Tools and Techniques: Practical guidance on mapping complex interdependencies and identifying critical leverage points.
- Simulation Exercise: A hands-on experience with "StarsEngines AG" or "EcoTea Lanka Ltd."—immersive simulation games designed to foster systemic thinking and strategic foresight.

Why should you attend?

This workshop offers an unparalleled opportunity to:

- Learn directly from Prof. Dr. Siegfried Zürn, a leader in the field.
- Gain actionable insights to enhance your organization's strategic and operational approaches.
- Experience cutting-edge learning methods that blend theory and practice.

Who is it for?

Whether you are a manager seeking to navigate project complexities or a leader aiming to foster innovation, this session will equip you with tools to drive success in an ever-changing environment.
